CONSENSUS: WE WANT OUR MONEY BACK

student opinion –
academia in a pandemic

Hannah: Trying to accomplish things that very clearly need in person instruction.

Juan: Not interacting in person, not having the same quality education.

Blake: Lack of routine. The inability to go to campus and switch gears into "school mode" or going to the library.

Megan: Not being able to ask questions to my professors on demand... discussion based learning makes a big difference too.

Siena: Most of the work is group-based and it's hard to get in touch with people.

Hannah: Spending more time with my housemates... we all promised each other but probably could never follow through on with our vastly different schedules.

Juan: I feel healthier not having to physically go to class, I have more free time to pick up hobbies and healthy habits.

Blake: Getting much closer with my housemates and have also begun to paint.

Megan: Time to focus on my personal and career goals. Whereas normally I would be worried and consumed with classes. Now I can self reflect on my four years and what I want to take from this experience into the future"

Siena: Feeling grateful for my time at UCSB prior to COVID.

Hannah: No I do not... the issue of not having direct instruction and drastically different classes than usual, we're still paying fees for services that we have no way of utilizing. i'm not using the gym, the library, free printing, the UCEN, or any in-person service...

the UC is a massive institution — their business model should not be founded on the basis of extorting students.

Blake: Not at all. We have absolutely no access to most services... even wifi... with no financial assistance from the university.

Megan: I definitely do not... this isn't an online university and tuition is way more expensive, I'm not getting the same experience for the same price.

Juan: No I do not. I definitely feel like tuition should have been reduced.

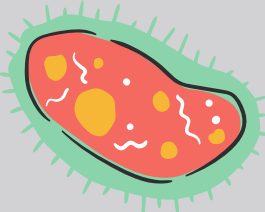

Siena: Definitely not. Im not getting the closeness with professors and faculty that is so much of what you pay for when you invest in a college experience.

Biggest challenge with onine learning?

Do you feel like youre getting your money's worth?

One unexpected positive from quarantine?

Do you feel inspired by any of your classes right now?

Hannah: I've felt inspired by my independent research.

Juan: I don't feel inspired by any of my classes.

Blake: No

Megan: I do not feel inspired by any of my classes.

Siena: My TMP class, transferred online seamlessly... This class is 1 unit and features inspirational guests.

Consensus Answer - Full or partial refund for this quarter.
